Hello, you beautiful comic book bibliophile, and thanks for taking a chance on CLUSTERFUX COMIX this Free Comic Book Day! Not that any risk was taken whatsoever on your part, so don't give yourself too much credit. You saw the cover, thought, "Hey! That looks interesting!" and picked it up without paying a single red cent. If you end up thinking it's a load of rubbish, you can always toss it in said rubbish bin (although I kindly ask that you please recycle). If you think it's the bees-knees and want to read more, have I got some great news for you!

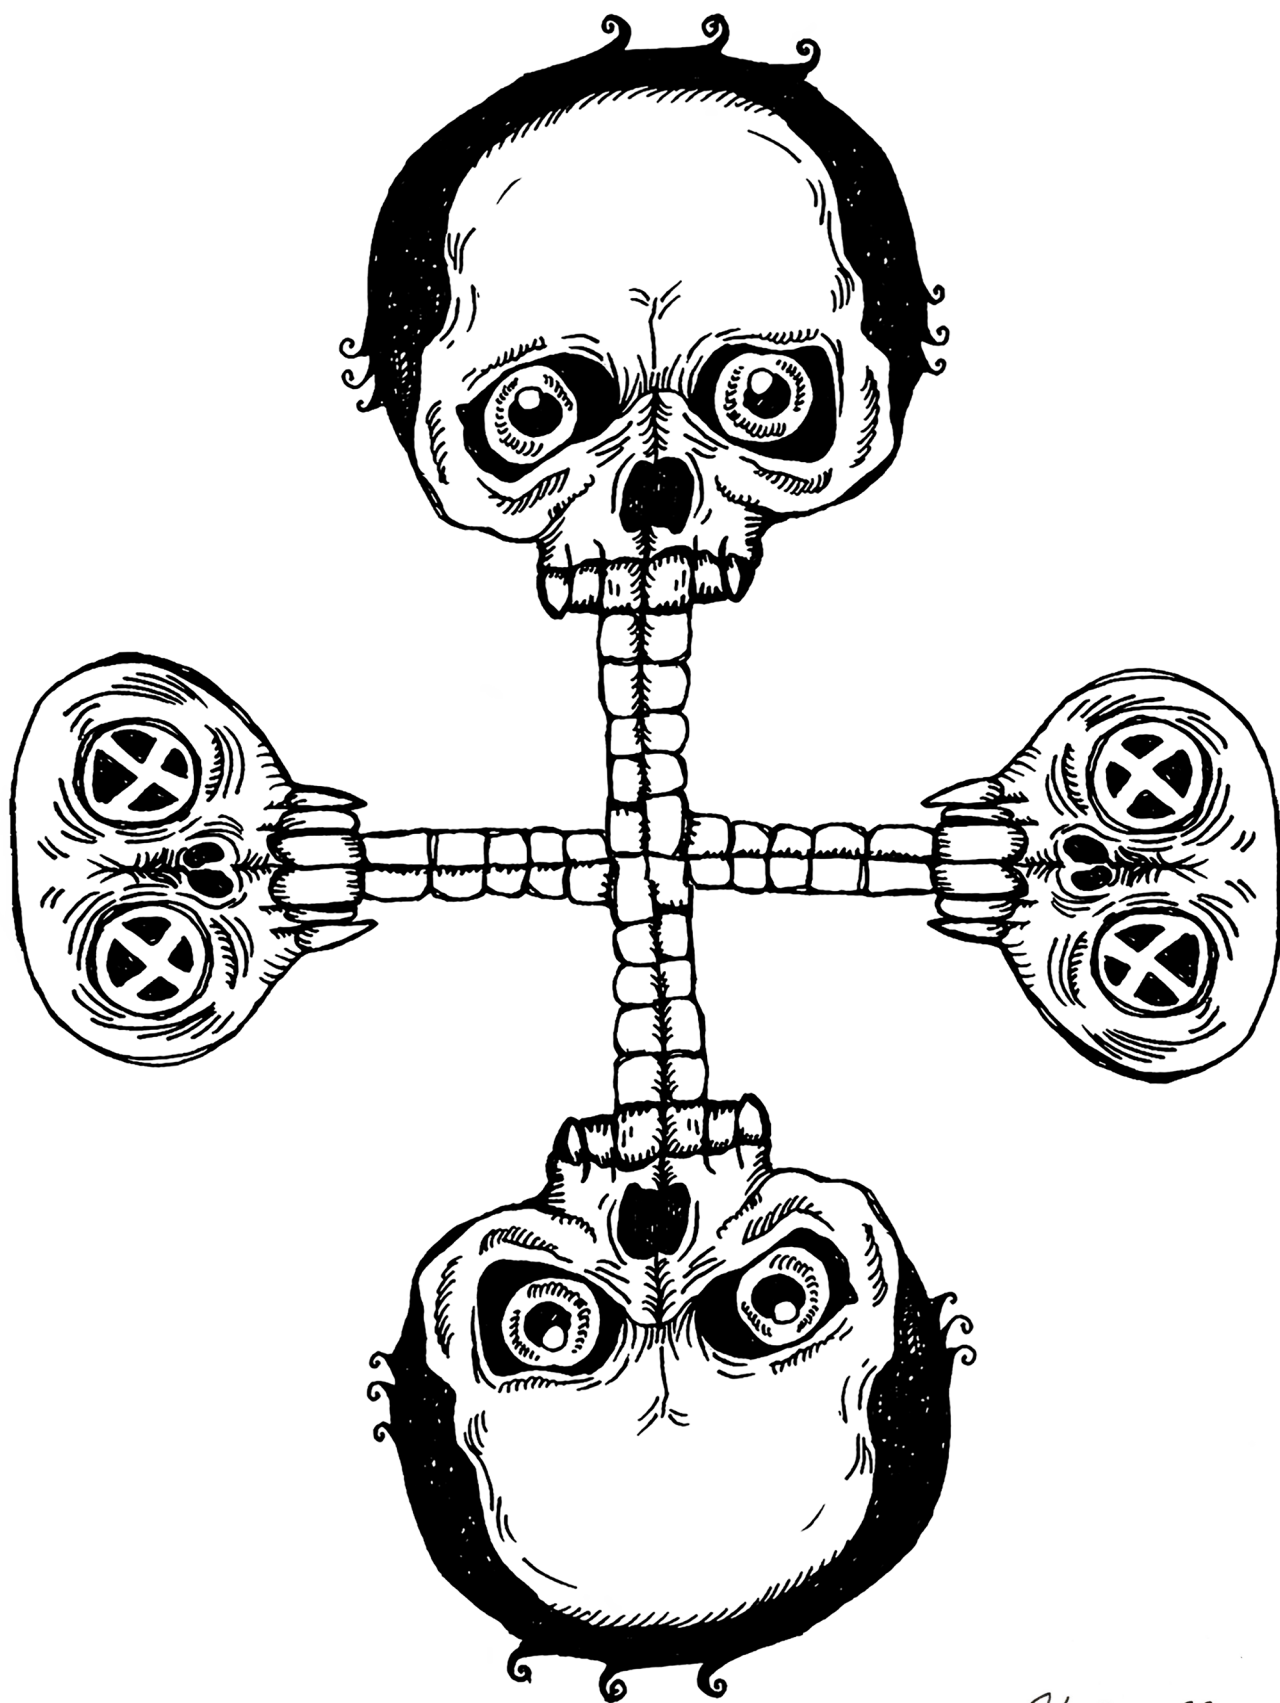

CLUSTERFUX COMIX is an underground comic anthology zine featuring some of the best indie creators kicking tremendous amounts of ass on a routine basis. I started putting the first issue together just before the global pandemic hit, and then spent all year working on the next few issues after being let go from my job. It's amazing how many comics you can put together when you have unlimited free time! Since then, four issues have been published (the most recent came out in April 2022) with a fifth issue scheduled for next year. One of my friends recommended I put together a little FCBD issue for shits & giggles, and thus, this issue you now hold in your hands was conceived.

Some of the contributors in this issue have been featured in previous issues before, and others are creators I've admired forever and have always wanted to collaborate with in some way. I asked everyone for either a comic, or their unique take on the CLUSTERFUX four-skull clover that graced the cover of the first issue. I feel this FCBD issue definitely gives you a taste of what to expect in the other issues.

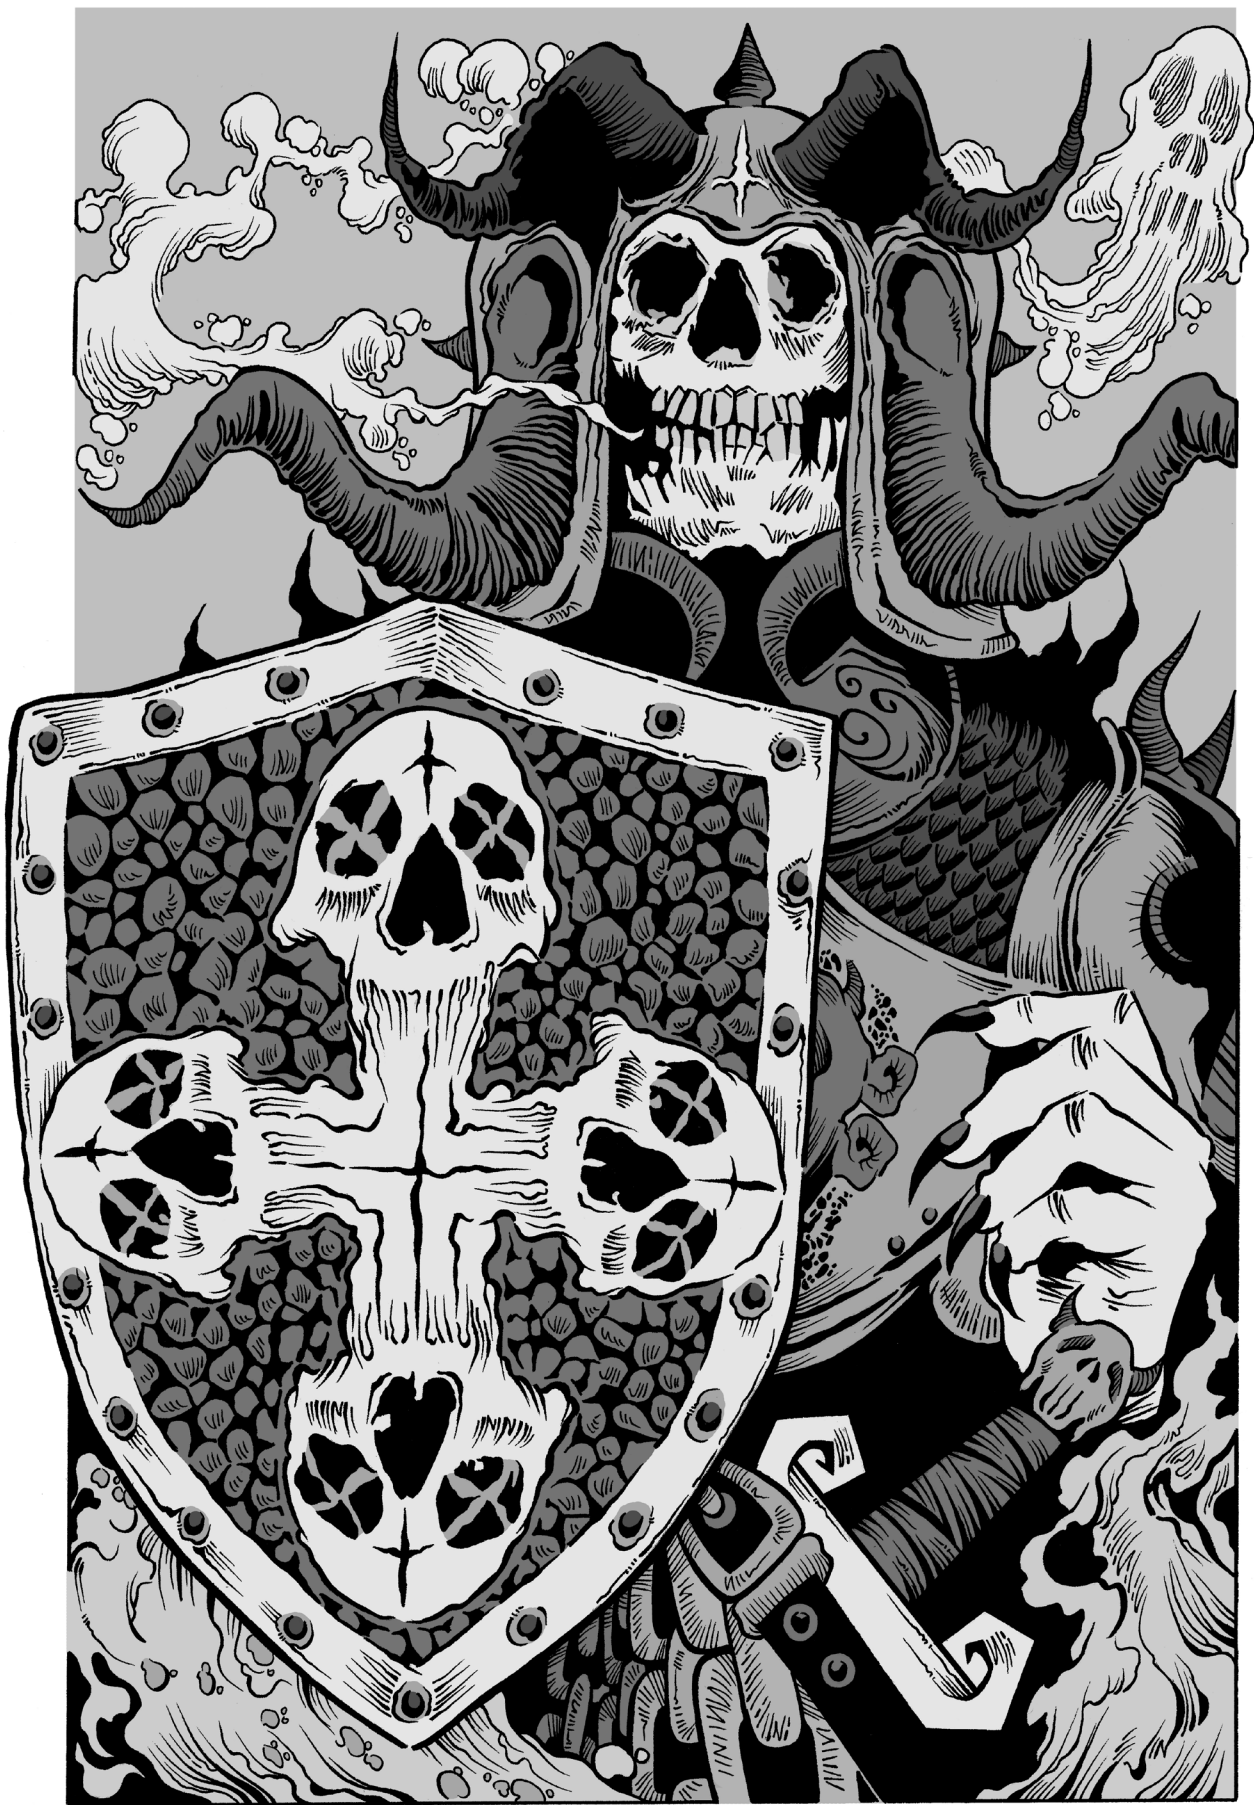

Have a phenomenal Free Comic Book Day, and I hope you enjoy!
